BANKER SHOT
BY A WOMANS. H. Buchanan Wounded in the Apartments of
Mrs. White.A VERY MUCH MIXED CASEHe Attributes It to Jealousy on Her Part and She Declares
He Shot Himself.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

DANVILLE, Va., October 31.—S. H. Buchanan, a banker, of Jonesboro, N. C., who was shot in the apartments of Mrs. W. T. White, on Main Street, Saturday night, and who is now at the General Hospital in a critical condition, stated that morning that he was shot by the woman, whom he admits having known quite intimately. He had read the woman a letter, which he had written to Mrs. L. B. Eggleston, who, he claims is the mother of his little daughter, who was also in the White home at the time. The bullet entered the man's breast near the nipple, inflicting a bad wound. The shot was fired from a small revolver, such as might be used by a woman, which weapon, with one chamber empty, was found in a drawer of the dresser later.

A weapon of heavier calibre was found in the man's grip, but had not been used. Mrs. White was arrested immediately after the shot was fired. She claims that the man shot himself.

A DIVORCED WOMAN.
Buchanan admits having known Mrs. White in Macon, Ga. He says that her husband has secured a divorce from her on statutory grounds. She last lived at Greensboro, N. C. She has two daughters, whom the divorce courts said should be under the care of their father, but they will not remain with him. His intimacy with the woman has extended over a period of several years, he having visited her at various places at which she has lived. He acknowledged the maternity of the child, Daisy Eggleston, saying that her mother is now located in Norfolk.

Buchanan states that his wife, who lives with him at Jonesboro, is also cognizant of the parentage of the child. He says that both he and his wife considered it his duty to look after the child who recently underwent an operation at a Richmond hospital. Upon the recovery of the child, he had her stop over with the Whites here, the children having known each other in the South previously. He came on here, he says, to meet the child.

The shooting occurred in the apartment of Mrs. White, and behind locked doors. Buchanan's version of the affair is that he was sitting before the fire discussing recent events in his life with Mrs. White when the woman's jealousy got the better of her judgment. He says that he had just read to her a letter to his mother in Norfolk, which letter has since been turned and the contents of which are unknown.

SHE LOCKED THE DOOR.
Mrs. White, he says, upbraided him. He thereupon started for the door, telling her that he would get out and get a breath of fresh air. He hopes that she would be in a better humor when he returned. The woman locked the doors, telling him that he should not leave the house. She then opened fire on him with the revolver. Mrs. White, on the other hand, says that Buchanan shot himself. She alleges that he had been drinking and was morose and gloomy. After reading to her the letter of the Eggleston woman he threw the letter in the fire, pulled the gun and shot himself. She states that when the shot was fired, she fled for the door and shot at her and threw herself on the bed moaning to him not to kill her. A moment later, Buchanan having unlocked the door, the children rushed in and after them an officer, who placed her under arrest. She also tells the tale of Buchanan's love for other women and infidelity to his wife. She dwells particularly on the parentage of the little girl, Daisy Eggleston, stating that Buchanan at one time had her with him at Jonesboro, where he erected a handsome residence for her, paying a large sum of money therefor.

RELEASED ON BAIL.
Mrs. White has been guarded at her home to-day, but late this afternoon was released on bail. Mr. William M. Lege, a local capitalist, going on her bond, and taking a lien on household goods as security for the amount.

Her home is handsomely furnished. The trial of the case has been set for next Monday, the physicians having stated that Buchanan will be able to appear in court at that time if complications do not develop.

Buchanan himself advanced the money to pay for the recordation of the mortgage. The police believe that he will not care to prosecute the woman. Prior to the shooting, on Saturday, Buchanan and Mrs. White made a tour of the shopping district together. He purchased, it is said, a handsome dress for Mrs. White and persuaded her to select another one which he bought for his wife.

WINCHESTER, Va., Oct. 31.—The funeral of Mrs. Rosa McKimney Ward, the divorced wife of Edward Ward, who was said to have died on Saturday from pneumonia, has been delayed pending an investigation, concerning an alleged abortive operation, performed either by the woman herself or some secret friend. It was stated to-day that the woman died to death and did not die from natural causes as first announced. Her body will probably be buried tomorrow.

SAILS LIKE A BREEZEGreat Record Is Made by Airship at St. Louis Exposition.A GRACEFUL SPECTACLENavigator Is Carried Around the Course on the Shoulders of Enthusiasts.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, October 31.—After circling in every direction at a height of 2,000 feet above the Cascades, in eight of thousands of cheering, enthusiastic spectators of the World's Fair grounds, A. Roy Knabenshue, of Toledo, in command of Thomas S. Baldwin's air-ship, California Arrow, to-day returned to the place from which he started, covering three and one-half miles, part of the way against an eight-mile wind.

Knabenshue started from the aeronautical course at 3:37 P. M. and returned at 4:05 P. M. On the return trip the air-ship sailed slowly over the exact spot from which it had arisen eighteen minutes previously, and glided about one hundred feet further west, and then settled gracefully to the ground. The descent of the Arrow was the signal for a great demonstration. Dozens of eager hands were outstretched to grasp the frame of the flying machine, which, with its navigator, was carried around the course on the shoulders of shouting men.

Rose With Ease.

The Arrow rose slowly and easily, its prow directed toward the west. When at a height of twenty-five feet, Knabenshue turned the rudder and the aerial craft, answering to its helm, pointed south and continued its flight without interruption. Knabenshue at that time was not high enough to clear the arena, fence, and as he rapidly approached it the crowd held its breath, fearing that the craft would be dashed against the barricade and the aeronaut injured or killed. But Knabenshue, waving his cap to assure those who were following his move, moved toward the rear of the air-ship. The Arrow pointed its prow upward, and answering the pull of the propeller, soared lightly over the fence and rapidly gained an altitude of 1,500 feet. After proceeding about half a mile westward, Knabenshue turned the airship about and again passed over the course, at the same time increasing his altitude until he was 2,000 feet above the earth.

Breasts the Breeze.

Knabenshue continued in a generally eastern direction until over the Cascades, the center of the World's Fair grounds and about a mile and a half in a direct line from the point of starting. At about the time the first perceptible breeze that had been blowing from the west increased to about eight miles an hour, and veered to the north. In order to return to the starting point it was necessary for Knabenshue to breast this breeze.

It seemed that his first effort to turn the airship from a course before the wind was unsuccessful, but Knabenshue, after trying to turn to the left, swung the rudder sharply in the other direction, and the Arrow came into the wind, staggered a moment, and then, gaining power, came toward the concourse at a speed that caused the spectators to cheer and toss hats in the air.

Waved His Reply.

The demonstration was observed by Knabenshue, who leaned far out and waved an empty ballast bag in reply. When within a few hundred feet of the concourse Knabenshue moved forward in the car, the Arrow pointed downward, and sailed toward the ground without any slackening of speed.

Knabenshue entered the concourse from the east at a height of two thousand feet, and slowly the speed of the motor directed the airship over the wooden frame that had supported the Arrow before the flight. The momentum was too great to admit of stopping exactly in the place from which he had made the ascent, but the airship settled to the ground within one hundred feet of the dock.

COLORED MAN
ON EDUCATIONExcellent Meeting Held in the Colored School at

Courthouse Wednesday—Prominent Educators to Take Part.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

CHESTER, Va., October 31.—An educational convention was held at the colored school house here last Friday, for the benefit of the colored teachers and patrons of Chesterfield county. A large delegation was present. President Johnson, of the Normal School at Petersburg; Rev. Webster Davis and Prof. Blackwell, of Manchester; Superintendents D. D. Fulham and W. A. Blankenship, of Manchester and Chesterfield, and B. P. Owen, Jr., and C. N. Friend, trustees, were present and addressed the gathering. Johnson, Davis and Blackwell, colored, made exceptionally fine addresses, not to say anything of the able speech of Mr. Fulham and the other white leaders.

Rev. Webster Davis several times alluded to his shiny black skin, and kept the audience in tears and laughter by his pathos and wit; but he delivered a "shilly" address, and was a demonstration of what the "colored brother" could attain under the beneficent influences of education, when applied to a useful and moral end.

All the speakers reminded the colored people present of the great liberality and kindness of the Southern white man in being taxed to educate the negro, and admonished them that the only way course for them to follow was to promote among themselves and train their children to virtue, honesty, industry, peace and good will toward the white people and all, and to use their educational advantages only to enable their race to be better citizens and more proficient in their various callings and service. The result of the meeting was evidently good.

There will be an educational convention held at Chesterfield Courthouse on Wednesday, the 2d of November, for the white teachers of the county, as well as a county school board meeting also. A number of prominent educators will be present to address the convention, and much good is hoped to be realized. The public generally will be welcomed.

These conventions are always educational as well as moral uplifts, and help to awaken the people to the importance of sending their children to school and of assisting the school trustees in building better schools with the co-operation of the people.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton McLaurine, of Ballsville, spent the day and night of yesterday with Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Hurt, of this place, and returned this morning.

Miss Mabel Robertson, the lovely and handsome daughter of Mr. G. E. Robertson, left the village on Saturday to make an extended visit to her uncle, Mr. Broadnax Robertson, of Savannah, Ga. Her many friends here will miss her presence and welcome her return.

Dr. William W. Murray, of Suffolk, Va., will deliver an address in the public school house here on next Sunday at 11 o'clock in the morning on "Millennial Hopes and Prospects." The public is invited.

EXPERT SUMMONED.
Prove Man May Be Rendered Unconscious Without Breaking Skin
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Oct. 31.—Dr. R. R. Garry, coroner, goes to Charlottesville to-morrow to give expert testimony in the McCue murder case. It is understood that the doctor will be put on by the defense to prove that a man might be rendered unconscious by a blow which does not break the skin or leave a bruise.

John Gardner, the man who died at the hospital Friday night, after being unconscious for more than 120 hours, had no mark or bruise on his head to indicate that he had received a blow, but when the coroner conducted an autopsy it was discovered that a great clot of blood on the brain had caused death.

The coroner's jury in the Gardner case returned a verdict to-night which threw no light on the mystery surrounding the death. The verdict was to the effect that the deceased came to his death from the effects of a breaking blood vessel. What caused this vessel to break is not known.
